NO COUNTRY FOR YOUNG:
MONITORING OF ATTACKS ON CHILDREN AND SCHOOLS DURING THREE YEARS OF THE WAR AT DONBAS
NO COUNTRY FOR YOUNG:
Non-Governmental organization Truth Hounds provides its final report — “No country for young: monitoring of attacks on children and schools during three years of the war at Donbas”. This report includes the documented evidence of crimes committed on the territory of Donetsk and Luhansk regions of Ukraine for the period of 2014-2017 and directed against children and educational institutions that belong to the list of objects protected by the international humanitarian law (IHL). The evidence collected by the Truth Hounds is presented and analysed in accordance with the principles of the international criminal law stricto sensu and the international human rights law. Our goal was to examine whether the requirements of the IHL relating to the protection of children, educational institutions and the provision of the incessancy of the educational process are being adhered to. The Truth Hounds’ team has ascertained that despite the special status of children and educational institutions in armed conflicts, gross violations of international standards systematically occur on the territory of Donetsk and Luhansk region of Ukraine being provoked by both parties.
FACTUAL BACKGROUND

In the second half of February 2014, after the Euromaidan in Ukraine, the armed forces of the Russian Federation with the support of the paramilitary forces invaded the Crimean Peninsula, the sovereign territory of Ukraine, as a result violating the prohibition of the use of force enshrined in the United Nations Charter. After the annexation of Crimea by the Russian Federation, pro-Russian separatists began to make attempts to establish control over the industrial regions of Eastern Ukraine. As a response to the increase in the number of Russian troops on the border, the Ukrainian government issued a decree about the launch of the "anti-terrorist operation" (ATO). On May 11th, 2014 pro-Russian separatists in Donetsk and Luhansk regions held unrecognized referendums, declared independence of the so-called “Donetsk People’s Republic” (DPR) and “Luhansk People’s Republic” (LPR) and issued drafts of new constitutions. The fight quickly escalated on the territory of Donbas. Losses, including among the civilian population started to increase. On July 17, 2014 the passenger Boeing of Malaysia airlines, which was operating the flight MH17 from Amsterdam to Kuala Lumpur was shot down on the territory controlled by separatist, taking 298 lives. Despite peace negotiations, which were held in Minsk, the fighting in Eastern Ukraine continued and is still going on, causing the death among civilian population and the destruction of civilian infrastructure. On February 2nd, 2017 one of the bloodiest days of the war in the East of Ukraine has occurred – an indiscriminate attack of Avdiivka city, which resulted in civilian losses and damages to a large number of civilian objects.

ELEMENTS OF CRIMES UNDER THE STATUTE OF THE INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT

To classify the mentioned acts under the Article 5 of the Statute of the International Criminal Court, it shall contain all the constituent elements of international crimes defined by the Statute and Elements of crimes.

In order to qualify the mentioned acts as war crimes, it is required to prove that they were committed in the context of an armed conflict or occupation. To qualify those acts as crimes against humanity, the crime has to be a part of a widespread or systematic attack directed against any civilian population pursuant to a state or organizational policy.

The Truth Hounds' report demonstrates that the armed confrontation on the territory of Luhansk and Donetsk regions of Ukraine since 2014 reached the certain level of intensity and widespreadness of violence that are typical for an armed conflict. Given the numerous evidence presented by Truth Hounds earlier, there is a certainty about the international character of an armed conflict.

Articles 8(2)(b)(ix) and 8(2)(e)(iv) of the Rome Statute criminalize intentionally directed attacks against buildings intended for educational purposes provided that they are not used as military facilities. Attacks against mentioned buildings can constitute an international war crime regardless of whether such attacks are carried out in the framework of an international or non-international armed conflict. Separate attacks on schools that were documented by the Truth Hounds are regarded by us as international crimes under the Article 8(2)(b)(ix) in terms of the proof of attack, the existence of an armed conflict in which they occurred and the existence of the intent of perpetrators at least in the form of understanding that the consequences of the damage to educational institutions will occur in the ordinary course of events.

The use of schools for military purposes, which was documented by the Truth Hounds, constitutes a violation of IHL. The same can be said about individual cases of looting or destruction of property of educational institutions. However, those actions of looting and destruction do not constitute war crimes under the Rome Statute.

Such use also prevents the provision of education to children, which is considered to be one of the priorities of the Treaty law, customary IHL and IHRL.
